LONDON: THE CHURCH LITERATURE ASSOCIATION, 7 TUFTON STREET WESTMINSTER, SW1P 3QR. 1973

FOREWORD

TO SECOND EDITION

I gladly commend this admirable edition of the Church Travellers' Directory. A work of this kind demands both laborious research and careful attention to detail, because its usefulness depends on its accuracy. Father Blagdon-Gamlen has earned the thanks of all English churchpeople who travel, and have no wish, when they do so, to leave their religion at home.

A change in the manner of the presentation of the Holy Mysteries may be no bad thing for any of us, when away from our accustomed altars, but the Mass and the Sacraments themselves must be seen to be readily available.

+ LLOYD LEWEN

FOREWORD

TO FIRST EDITION

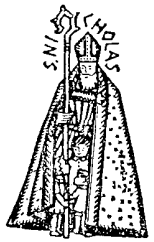

Wherever we go in this country we are near a parish church. There we have an altar, and there we are—or should be—at home. But I have no doubt that people on the move often have difficulty in finding out, for example, where there is a Daily Mass, or where they can make their confessions. I myself have stood in churches and porches looking for such information, but to be edified only by notices about dog licences and local elections.

Many years ago the English Church Union and Messrs. Mowbray published a "Church Guide," which had a considerable circulation. I am glad that Father Blagdon-Gamlen has taken the initiative in compiling this up-to-date Directory, and I am sure that travellers and holidaymakers will be grateful to him for the trouble he has taken in amassing and presenting all this information.

I commend it gladly to every kind of wayfarer.

PREFACE
TO THE SECOND EDITION

The late Sir Compton Mackenzie in his " Sinister Street," completed in 1914, mentioned that Michael Fane " liked to pore upon the Tourist's Church Guide," so something of the kind is no new thing, and I have been heartened by the expressions of usefulness that readers of the 1966 edition have sent me. That was after a lapse of fifteen years since a former compilation by another hand. I hope that this edition will be even more accurate, and that readers will send in the inevitable corrections to " The Editor of the CTD " at Faith House, 7 Tufton Street, London, S.W.1.

The object of this little book is to provide information as to the whereabouts of churches which normally have one or more of these four categories : Daily Eucharist (at least five out of the six weekdays) ; Sung Eucharist, Parish Communion, Solemn Mass, etc.—the name does not matter—on all Sundays ; Confessions heard at fixed times ; and continuous Reservation of the Blessed Sacrament. No indication of times, usage, rite, etc., can be given, as these vary so much, and the traveller must make his choice on the spot—when there is a choice ! The information is intended to be factual, and must not be taken to imply any particular churchmanship, but one or two churches where the visitor cannot, alas, be sure that a validly ordained priest or bishop will be the celebrant have deliberately been excluded.

A slightly different principle is used in the Scottish section, where Episcopal Churches are so few and far between, that we have tried to list one in every place, whether coming under one or more of the " four categories " or not.

I am most grateful again to many correspondents in various parts of the country for their information and encouragement. I wish I could list them all, but must single out Fathers Jeremy Cooper and Michael Graney, and my lay friends Philip Gilkes and Michael Yelton, who between them checked up on almost every church in the London area, and Audrey Stevens who has helped me so much in verifying churches in South-Eastern England.

Finally I would like to thank the Bishop of Lewes, this year's President of the Church Union, for his kind Foreword; the Bishop of Crediton for his kind commendation of the last edition which bears repetition in this ; The Bishop of Moray, Ross and Caithness, another Episcopal Vice-President of the Church Union (himself a contributor) for his approbation of the Scottish section, and Anthony Symondson for providing the charming cover. It may be of interest to record that of the United Kingdom Cathedrals, 23 out of the 43 English ones have perpetual Reservation of the Blessed Sacrament, all 8 of those in Scotland, and 5 out of 6 of the Welsh Cathedrals.

PETER BLAGDON-GAMLEN,
Editor.
